The Unpardonable Sin.

Several days ago we commended the short sermon preached by Governor Montague, when he refused to pardon John M. King, upon civic righteousness, Another such sermon was preached by Judge Adams, of the United States District Court, sitting in St. Louis, when he passed sentence upon Senator J. K. Burton, of Kansas. "Your conviction," said Judge Adams, "necessarily results in your punishment. Its importance, in my opinion, is not confined to its effect upon you. Your exalted station in life and the character of your offense give unusual significance to your conviction. It demonstrates that the law of the land is equal to any emergency, and that it can be administered regardless of the personality and station of the accused, It also demonstrates to all the people that public office cannot be prostituted to self-serving purposes and that public office is not a sure or safe passport to private thrift."

This deliverance is timely and imprespassed sentence upon Senator J. K. Bur-

This deliverance is timely and impres-Bive. It is a strange phase of humanity that invariably there is more sympathy with the criminal in high life than with the criminal of humble circumstances. In point of fact the criminal in high life is more to be condemned. The boy who has been reared on the streets, who has no advantage of moral training, who has grown up like a wild beast, with the idea that all the world is against him, and that he has a primitive right to take from the world all that he can get, is a thief by education and is expected to steal. He has no conscience. He has no proper conception of honesty and honor and responsibility. We cannot expect a person thus reared to be honest and upright. We lock our doors against him and if he succeeds in breaking through and stealing our possessions, it is no more than we expected. We put the blame upon the bad locks, rather than the thief.

But the case is far different with the man who has been reared under moral and refined influences, who has been taught from his youth the difference between right and wrong, who thoroughly understands the nature of an obligation and a trust. It should be as unnatural for a person thus brought up to commit a dishonest or a dishonorable set as it is unnatural for the man brought up in the gutter to be honest. let when the latter steals and is apprehended, he is condemned as a thief life who goes wrong and betrays his trust becomes an object of sympathy. and every effort is made to prevent him from being gonvicted. If perchance he is convicted, it is reasonably certain that petitions will be circulated for his pardon, and usually the members of the jury who convicted him will be among the first phasize the fact that the Senator's crime was exaggerated because of the high position he held, and the point was well made. There is every incentive to a United States senator to be honest and honorable and to keep himself above suspicion. There is an inspiration in the very title which the man bears, and by which he is called. There is something in the very appearance of the Capitol, something in its atmosphere; something in the portraits and statues of statesmen and military heroes which adorn the building; something in the sacred associations of whatever character, all of which tend to beget a spirit of revenence seven in the casual visitor. How much more should the member of Congress, who lives day by day in such atmosphere, with the responsibilities of office upon him, be influenced by the environment to do right and restrained from doing evil. If there is a position under Heaven which seems to safeguard a man against the temptation of avarice, it is the position of United States senator in Congress. How can a man holding such a trust betray it? How can a man holding such as the tray it? How can a man holding such as the more proposed to be given as security for said son, or for any services whatsoever rendered and branded as a traitor, and society should turn its back upon them; make them to feel the senormity of their crims. one of the most forceful of the newspaper writers of the United States. He was educated in Germany, and is very much tainted with Socialism, as readers of the Journal will know. There are those who say that to Mr. Brisbane, rather than to Air. Hearst, is due the success of the Hearst newspapers, and that Brisbane has furnished the brain and the inspiration, while Hearst has entoyed the fame.

In the New York Herald of Wednesday, Mr. Brisbane prints a communication in which he urges with his usual force and enthusiasm the nomination of Hearst. He is as emphatic as the English language enables him to be, and his whole communication bristles with words printed in capital letters. If these expressions had been in the Journal instead of in the Herald, they would have been printed with advertising type rather than with capitals. But Mr. Brisbane is as spectacular as the rules of the Herald's printing office allow,, and he is exceedingly generous in his praise of Hearst, The occasion for this communication is not stated. But we suppose that it was suggested by a communication which appeared in the Brooklyn Eagle Tuesday afternoon. The communication we reproduce elsewhere. We do not know whether or not to take it seriously, but whether it is to be taken in good faith or as a piece of brilliant satire, it makes interesting reading.

Money Sharks and Their Clients.

The "curbstone" bankers of Richmond have often been exploited through the newspapers and otherwise. Most people call them "money sharks." Their business is to lend small sums of money to poor people upon slender security, but at exorbitant rates of interest, evade the law against usury by charging all sorts of fees for the examination of goods pledged to secure the loan, and for other alleged services rendered. The amount of the fees is added to the amount of money loaned and the borgower pledges himself to pay so much a month until the debt is liquidated. We believe that there are also fines for failure to meet regular payments, and so again the principal of the debt is in-creased. We have heard of cases where the borrower paid instalments in excess in the aggregate of the original sum borrowed, yet was more heavily in debt than ever.

A few years ago we investigated the subject as thoroughly as we could, and became interested in these unfortunate in the Virginia mountains, debtors, who, according to report, were frequently porsecuted by the "money sharks." We even went so far as to assume a sort of guardianship over one them. A compromise was effected between him and his creditor. The money was advanced to pay off the debt and the debtor was admonished that he might reimburse the guardian upon his own terms, without interest. We regret to say, however, that from that time until now we have had no further communication with that distressed debtor.

But one swallow does not make a summer, and, being interested in the whole tribe of distressed debtors, we advertised that we would supply the services of a lawyer to any such debtor who found himself entangled in the colls of a "money shark." But strangely enough, the lawyer whose services were thus offered free was not besieged, as might have been expected, by an army of would-be litigants. Indeed, but very few called upon him, and within the past twelve months his services have been in demand at all from that class of borrowers.

From this experience we reached the conclusion that the persecuted class was not so large as had been represented to us, and that some of them at least were and sent to prison, and nobody gives not as much dissatisfied with the barhis case a thought; while the man in high gains which they had made with the "curbstone" bankers as we had understood. It is easy enough to drive the "curbstone" bankers out of business, but if so, their customers would find it difficult to borrow money at all. No reputable bank would think of lending money to them in small amounts upon the slender security which they are able to offer. Still, something ought to be done for their protection, and the best bill Ing sentence upon Senator Burton to emphasize the fact that the Santania of the subject that we have seen was introduced some time ago in the South phasize the fact that the Senator's crime | Carolina Legislature. If the News Leader thinks that The Cimes-Dispatch is in any sense authorized to speak for Judge Willam H. Mann, It is mistaken. In saying that Judge Mann was not a member of the Prohibition party, but that he was a member of the Democratic party, we simply stated a well known fact. Whether or not Judge Mann would forsake the Democratic for the Prohibition party, we do not know, for we have never discussed the subject with him in any manner whatsoever. The only conversaton that we have ever had with him concerning his candidacy was held on the street corner after the first two articles, which we wrote on the subject had appeared. Even then only a few words were exchanged. Judge Mann was asked if he would soon publish a card setting forth his views, and he made some reply, the exact nature of which we do not even remember. As already stated more than once, The Times-Dispatch has no cardidate for the gubernatorial nomination, and, even if it should decide to support any one of the gentlemen whose names have been mentioned in this connection, its choice would not fall upon Judge Mann.

Railroad earnings for the fourth week in March make a much better showing than they made a little while ago when the weather interfered materially with traffic. The Southern roads are showing up remarkably well for that week. Tho carnings of the Louisville and Nashville road increased $63,331, and the earnings of the Southern Railway increased $74,-600. This is but another proof of the fact that trade conditions in the South are excellent. The fact is the Southern roads have practically all the business that they can handle, and some of them are in sore need of a double track road to accommodate their rapidly increasing traffic.

The Asheville Citizen sums up the demand of the hour thus:

The country to-day has need of a man who will be a simple Democratic President, who will execute the law and obey it. The people are weary of the trills and folibles of an eccentric Executive, and they sigh for a return to the old policies and principles of Jefersonian days. "Government by the people and for the people is again the slogan of victory, and it behooves all true Democrats to rally to the call.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 7.—The arrest of G. W. K. Williams, a well known citizen, was the sequel to long and secret negotiations by agents of George W. Vanderbilt to obtain several thousand acres of land adjacent to Asheville.

Mr. Vanderbilt knew that if the owners suspected his design to purchase the price would go beyond any reasonable figure. He engaged R. U. Garrett, a real estate dealer, to do the manipulating. Garrett was assisted by J. D. Penland. They began negotiations four years ago, and had to proceed slowly and continuously. No one suspected that Mr. Vanderbilt was the real purchaser until the exciting developments of this week.

Every name of more than five hundred except that of Williams, had been subscribed to the various deeds. Williams had given to Mr. Garrett an option on a part of the land, the price agreed upon being $2,500. When the money was offered he demanded $50,000. The matter was carried to court, and Williams was ordered to sign and surrender the deed. He paid no attention to the order and was put in jail.

Williams remained in jail twenty-four hours. Then, through the pleadings of which he did yesterday, and was liberated.

Athlete tells of wonderful cure AFFLICTED BY BLOOD POISON FOERG'S REMEDY

Physicians marvel and praise. Sufferers wonder and rejoice.

A remarkable remedy for blood poison

Is an absolute, unfalling remedy for Blood Poison untitled to rank among the Great Discoveries of the Age?

We say no, unless it is a complete and perfect remedy, effecting a cure in every of blood poisoning, whether constitutional or acquired. We did not aim at mere of. There are other means of relief. We want to provide a permanent cure. There is no other means.

In Foerg's Remedy, have we a certain permanent cure? Physicians say we have, sufferers say we have. We have a countless mass of letters from them. They speak of many cures, but not of a single failure. Read this letter, one of an endless number;

"I have used six bottles of Foery's Remedy for a case of blood disease of long standing. I gave most everything recommended a trial, but without success, and by luck beard of Foery's Remedy, so I decided to give it a trial, which I did, and I cm glad to say it completely cured me. I am an acrobat, and recommended it to many of my profession, and hear of good results from all who take my advice. Wish you success and hope Foery's, Remedy will be standard amongst me of the future."

The writer of this letter is a well known athlete, whose name we withhold because all correspondence with our patrons is strictly confidential. We stake our commercial honor and standing on the statement that the letter is here faithfully reproduced. For many years we worked upon this problem. Other diseases, we reasoned are curable. Why not this one? And so we continued our work until our efforts found the highest success, when we were ready to guarantee a cure in every case.

A NEW UNIFORM.

Franklin Cadets Attract Attention at Newport News. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
FRANKLIN, VA., April 7.—A large number of our people from this section went to see the Virginia launched at Newport News. The company of students from the Franklin Milliary Academy, at this place, the uniforms which they wore, mistaken for khaki, was not khaki at all, but was heavy woolen cloth, of the color and texture prescribed for the regular army of the United States under the latest regulation. Very few of even the United States regulars have yet been cautipred with this, new regulation uniform, and it is safe to say that the students of Franklin Milliary Academy are the only students in this State, if not in the whole country, that have yet been so equipped. This milliary academy is owned by the Franklin Academy to woned by the Franklin Academy to woned by the Franklin Academy to woned by the Franklin Academy to owned by the Franklin Academy Company, and is run by Professor H. G. Noff-singer, formerly of Botetourt county, as principal, with 8. Smith Lee, a nephew of General Fitzhugh Lee, and graduate of V. M. I., formerly of Fredericksburg, Va. as assistant and commandant. This company had more men in ranks than any other company that was at the launching.
